FROM SALEM.

Reversal of Judgment in the Holladay Case.

Salem, Ore., March 19.—Last night about 10 o'clock the body of Dr. L. R. Rowland was set on fire by an incendiary and burned. Loss about $200.

The work of raising the sunken steamer Oregon has been abandoned, an emergency vessel, an iron which enables her successful withdrawal from her position for the present impracticable. The action of the current and the position of the boat have caused the formation of a sandbank, which has taken out the channel, so that the next summer when the water is low no effort will be made to raise the boat by jackscrews.

The identity of the man who jumped from the bridge Saturday evening is still a mystery. No one appears to be missing from Salem, and it is altogether likely the suicide was a stranger. For some reason no effort has been made to recover the body.

Articles of incorporation of American Fisheries Company were filed yesterday in the office of the secretary of state. Incorporators J. H. Turner, J. H. Ealey, Lehman Blum, R. Tangent, W. A. TRIAL OF NEUSTADT.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—The trial of Walter Neustadt, the half interest Swindler, was commenced in the court of justice yesterday. A jury was impaneled and the trial began. The Oregon farmer, took the stand and told how he was duped. The crime for which Neustadt is on trial consists of selling worthless real estate, representing that he had made an profitable bargain, and sold it back to Neustadt for $200, taking a promissory note, which Neustadt had failed to pay him.

The holding of Mr. Edward Parker, attorney for defendant, in his application for a new trial, he had confided the execution of his last will, and had confided his appointment from it. Letters testamentary issued by the judge, and the authority of the letters of the will conferred by the will, and are founded upon the probate of that instrument.

Second.—All common law all persons capable of making wills, and some other classes, are capable of making valid executors, and from the same time it has been the rule that every person may be an executor, saving such as are expressly forbidden.

Third.—Our code has listed many persons whose wills were considered to be incompetent, and the tendency of modern legislation being to enlarge the control of probate courts in respect to testamentary appointments, but the principle by which the court is to be guided is to be found in the testator's letter testamentary as he had remained unchanged.

Fourth.—As at common law, under the statute, all persons not expressly forbidden may serve as executors, and when one or more are so appointed by the testator, the testator's intent to his choice and uses the necessary letters to enable such representative to perform his trust.

Fifth.—It was therefore held that when a will is made in the plain duty of the court to grant letters testamentary to the person named in the will upon his application, if the testator had qualified by the statute.

On motion of W. H. Holmes, Sam'l. Hanley Peck was admitted and appointed attorney for the U. S. and the supreme court of Texas to practice in all courts of the state.
